

Dear AAA Member,

As you know, the past several weeks have delivered harsh storms, lashing winds and rising tides to some of our most treasured vacation destinations in Florida and the Caribbean. We have remained in contact with our friends and colleagues on the ground in these locations, and as an organization are dedicated to helping those affected in a variety of ways.

As your friend and advocate in travel, we are also committed to making sure you have the most up-to-date information in order to assist and guide you toward the best vacation choices for you and your family. AAA Travel has an extensive network of travel partners who provide first-hand status updates to us. We want to share that information with you so you are as prepared as possible for any upcoming trips.

The hurricanes' impact and current conditions of the destinations varies greatly. While the hurricanes struck a few of the islands, many were not impacted and continue to offer a warm welcome to their shores. In the Florida Keys, where that state's majority of the damage occurred, we are told they are fully functioning and already welcoming back cruise ships and visitors.

Below are the islands that were untouched and remain fully functioning destinations:

Antigua	Aruba
Bahamas	Barbados
Bermuda	Bonaire
Curacao	Dominican Republic
Grand Cayman	Grenada
Jamaica	Martinique
Nevis	Saint Lucia
St. Kitts	St. Vincent & the Grenadines

Islands that sustained minor damage but should be fully operational within a few months:

- Turks & Caicos

Islands that received major damage and are expected to be closed for an extended period of time:

- Anguilla
- British Virgin Islands
- Dominica
- Puerto Rico
- St. Barts
- St. Martin/Saint Maarten
- U.S. Virgin Islands (St. Thomas, St. John and St. Croix)

Like you, many of us at AAA Travel love our vacations to Florida and the Caribbean. It's a favorite place to go for sun, fun, and relaxation. Your AAA travel counselors are on standby for any questions you may have about these popular vacation spots. Whether it's about an existing booking or your future travel plans, please call us at 800-AAA-7448 or visit one of our local branches with any questions you have about areas that may have been impacted by the storms. The Caribbean is, and always will be, a special place. Its strength, beauty, and fortitude are what make this region magical.

Sincerely,
